Musher embarks on Yukon Quest

Darren Lum

Staff reporter

Just as he promised a few years ago, Haliburton resident and local tour operator Hank DeBruin, 51, is going to compete again in the 2014 Yukon Quest International Sled Dog Race.

The last Yukon Quest we ran was brutally tough so we're very nervous, but we're going anyways," he said in an email.

The 1,000-mile dogsledding race from Fairbanks, Alaska to Whitehorse, Yukon starting on Feb. 1 is arguably tougher than the highly publicized Iditarod.

It's a true test of will and physical strength.

With the course divided into nine checkpoints, the mushers must endure temperatures of -40°F and bitter 100-mile-per-hour winds as they travel more than 200 miles between check-

The course crosses open water, bad ice and frozen rivers, including four mountain summits.

The race won't be any easier the second time around for the Haliburton resident, who is looking forward to an 11-day finish.

The first time DeBruin raced he earned the Red Lantern Award as the last competitor to cross the finish line.

In 2011, he finished in 13 days, 11 hours and 12 minutes, which was good for 13th place.

More people have climbed Mount Everest than completed the Yukon Quest, DeBruin told the Echo in 2011.

Last time, he turned to family and Facebook for support through the tough times during the Yukon Quest. He will do the same again this Wife Tanya and her brother Ward McCready will head out soon to see him during his race.

She is excited but also concerned for her husband, knowing the challenges that lay before

Although he won't have his lead dog, Lily, who was instrumental in finishing the Yukon Quest the first time, he will have her bloodlines guiding him.

OPP arrest two men after fight

On Tuesday, Jan. 14, at approximately 7:30 p.m. Haliburton Highlands OPP responded to a fight on Highland Street in Haliburton.

Officers were called after a Haliburton man was jumped by two other men and started to fight him.

OPP located the two men responsible for the fight and arrested both. As a result, a 17-year-old man from Haliburton was charged with assault and a 21-yearold also from Haliburton was charged with assault; theft under $5,000; uttering threats and two counts of failing to comply with probation order.

The accused was scheduled to appear for a bail hearing on Jan. 15, at the Ontario Court of Justice in Lindsay.

OPP investigating snowmobile theft

The OPP is investigating the theft of a snowmobile from the Haliburton County Rail Trail at County Road 1 in Dysart et al.

A couple from Fenelon Falls were out snowmobiling on Jan. 10 at about 7:15 p.m., when they stopped to take a break.

The owner was unable to restart the snowmobile, forcing the couple to walk back to their cottage. When the couple returned in the morning to retrieve the snowmobile, it was gone.

Police are looking for a white 2009 Polaris Dragon SP 800cc, bearing Ontario licence # 987397 and VIN # SN1PE8ES39C679036.

Anyone with information regarding the theft is asked to contact Constable Carmount at the Haliburton Highlands detachment at 705-286-1431 or the Kawartha-Haliburton Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477, or online at www.khcs.

Crime Stoppers will pay up to a $2,000 cash reward for a tip that leads to an arrest. You will not have to reveal your identity or attend court as a result of the information you provide.

Bring your spirit and Scottish flair for the annual Robbie Burns Night at the Haliburton Legion.

On Saturday, Jan. 25 at 7:30 p.m. the Legion will celebrate the Scottish poet and national hero Robbie Burns accompanied by the sounds of the bagpipes.

Organized by the Haliburton Highlanders Pipes and Drums, the event features the Address to the Haggis and Burns standards such as the Auld Lang Syne and the Awa Tae Bide Awa.

Eric Wootton was treated like a celebrity. When the 13-year-old J.D. Hodgson Elementary School student travelled to China with his dad last fall it felt like he was Justin Bieber.

A fair-haired, soft-spoken kid from Haliburton, Eric was regularly being stopped to have his photograph taken by people in the Asian country. It was like accompanying a celebrity, said Eric's father Brent.

"Westerners are very popular regardless and he was approached by girls constantly and asked to have their picture taken with him," said Brent. "This happened every day, everywhere we went."

Last October Eric had the opportunity to travel to China for a couple of weeks, accompanying his dad on a business trip.

A director and senior scientist at Fleming College, Brent's work includes research with the Centre for Alternative Wastewater Treatment, which is what brought him to

"Fleming College has an agreement with several organizations in China ... they have me come there to assist with various projects," said Brent. "I assist with water projects, cleaning up water, water pollution."

During their time overseas, Eric was in the field with his dad, assisting with the projects and learning more about wastewater. One of the projects included cleaning up water with plants, said Brent.

Along with learning, Eric also got to experience new foods, such as seahorse, meet people and witness breathtaking sights.

Never having been that far from home before, Eric found the first few days exhausting after a long plane ride.

But soon he was adjusting to the new cul-

"It was really great, the people are really nice," said Eric.

One of the biggest adjustments was getting used to all the people and the food.

Not surprisingly, visiting the Great Wall of China was one of the standout moments of the trip for Eric, who was surprised to see so few people there when he went. "It wasn't busy at all," he said.

The Woottons split their time between cities like Shanghai and the countryside.

Weather was favourable, with the days being mostly warm and clear with little smog, something that is prevalent in the

"There was a lot of smog and you would see people with masks on because it's pretty bad in some places," said Eric.

Born and raised in the county, Eric broadened his foreign vocabulary while overseas, learning some crucial words.

One of the most important phrases he picked up was "I'm full," he said.

"They like to eat a lot, they have like 12-course meals," said Eric.

The experience sparked Eric's interest in wastewater treatment and science.

and participate in real world environmental projects ... and at the same time get to experience culture and have fun," said Brent.

Those hosting the two Haliburtonians were always hospitable, ensuring Eric had an authentic experience.

Apart from shopping trips, ice cream and sightseeing, the young man was also taken ice skating. "I had a lot of fun," said Eric.

A memory Eric will never forget is getting invited to a yoga class and agreeing to go in an exchange that was lost in translation.

"I had no clue what was happening and it was a bunch of older ladies doing yoga," he said. "Everyone was staring at me and I had no idea what I was doing."

Fundraiser to get family back on their feet

Darren Lum

All Emelia King could do was cry when she heard about the fundraiser for her family, who lost almost everything they own and love in a fire that consumed their Lochlin home last week.

"I didn't expect that at all. It was very heart warming. It really was," she said.

The all-ages event with cash bar at the A.J. LaRue Arena in Haliburton on Jan. 24 is raising money for the family with a video dance by Jamie Bacon and catering by Head

King, who is 23 with a baby boy, said the family is taking it "one day at a time" and is humbled by the outpour-

The fire required two fire departments and six hours to put out. It destroyed the home and killed the family's cat

King's mother loved how people have donated money in their name to the humane society. It's fitting, as the pets were loved like members of the family.

"My mom is so happy they did that. Even though [it doesn't directly help us]. It's helpful to know people still do care about animals and their pets," she said.

King's parents Joanne and Stephen have been overwhelmed by the community's generosity and appreciate everyone's efforts.

"They wanted to thank everybody in coming forward and helping as much as they have. It's really been incredible," she said.

The Kings' family friend Carol Davis, whose daughter is helping organize the upcoming Haliburton fundraiser, just wanted to help friends and neighbours.

"Until insurance gets done and comes through they have nothing. They've lost all their clothing. They lost everything ... bedding and whatever. It's just one of those things. We're a small community. They're our neighbours and we want to help them out," she said.

She and her husband have known the Kings for 15 years. "If it was my house I know Joanne would do the same thing for us. They're very good people that way," she said.

They have contributed a few hundred dollars, covering the arena and liquor licence for the fundraising event.

Davis said donations are coming from Huntsville, Keswick and Lindsav

"People are offering up furniture and whatever they need," she said.

With an expected 200 tickets, the event isn't likely to clear $2,000 even with a sell-out, Davis said. So, the family is really hoping "affordable" housing will be made available for up to nine months when they hope to rebuild.

She points out Joanne is the sole-income earner and would appreciate any accommodation opportunities.

Right now they are staying with family in Blairhampton. 'We're making due right now until we find our own place," King said.

The fundraiser is Friday, Jan. 24 from 8 p.m. to midnight at the A.J. LaRue Arena in Haliburton. Admission is $10 per person or two for $15 and includes a buffet meal.

Positive change

HE LOCAL MEDIA landscape has shifted under our feet a couple of times this last month with changes hard to keep up with.

Staff and appearance of the papers fluctuated from week to week.

Now things have settled and for those curious about the future of the Minden Times and Haliburton Echo, there is good news.

Both papers are now under the sole ownership of London Publishing, an independent publishing group based out of Beeton, Ont.

This new structure follows a month-long partnership between The Highlander newspaper and London Publishing under the name Maple Key Media.

Last week, the two sides of Maple Key decided to part ways and now London Publishing is taking over exclusively.

This new ownership aims to strengthen the Times and Echo and presents the opportunity for these long-standing, award-winning papers to return to their roots.

And we're excited about that.

The Haliburton Echo and Minden Times are papers known across the province for award-winning journalism.

Built from the ground up by community members, both papers have proud histories of serving Haliburton County.

London Publishing intends to continue this tradition.

> Under Maple Key Media, a few familiar faces left the papers - I was one of those people.

I am happy to announce that Chad Ingram and Steve Galea are joining me back at the Echo and Times to continue making excellent papers along with the rest of our incredible, hard-working staff.

We also thank former general manager Curtis Armstrong, who helped guide the papers through the transition period on behalf of Sun Media.

The people who work at the Echo and Times do so primarily for the love of it.

Newspapers, while privately owned, provide a public service and have the ability to enhance the community they represent.

I speak for our entire staff when I say that is what fuels our passion for working here.

Going forward, we hope our readers will continue to join us in creating the papers this fantastic community deserves.

Hockey in the Highlands

THERE ARE SO many wonderful Haliburton events taking place every year and they are fun for all and celebrate our village. Then there is Hockey Night in Haliburton, a once-in-a-lifetime happening! Never again will we see the premiere of There's Something in the Water? - our very own Haliburton hockey story. And, what are the chances that we will again welcome 20 members of Hockey News, James Duthie, the host of TSN's extensive NHL coverage and retired

NHL greats Bobby Baun and Chris Nilan? I had a delightful phone conversation with Wayde Greer, executive producer Bent Nose Media Inc. We chatted about Hockey Night in Haliburton and the vital role our town and our residents will play in making it a success.

As Wayde says, "We [the film can bring big names to town ... our community needs to welcome them to Haliburton and show up for this mon- name for election to the 2014 BIA xecumental event." I like that word monumental. You sure don't want to miss out on a monumental event! Be there - Jan. 25 at Head Lake Park.

There will be bonfires, free hand warmers and hot chocolate! There will be a 40-foot movie screen! The BIA is eager to support Hockey Night in Haliburton. We are going to show this support with Hockey Jersey Day for the BIA.

All our member stores, restaurants and business have been asked to wear hockey jerseys on Friday, Jan. 24 and Saturday the 25.

Our visitors will be sure to know they are in hockey central and we are excited! We would like to invite you to do the same.

Wear a hockey jersey on those days. I would like to say it has to be a Maple Leafs jersey but that would not be correct. Any hockey jersey will be great! (Yes, I am a forever Leafs fan!)

The BIA AGM is being held on Tuesday, Feb. 11 at 7 p.m. at the municipal offices.

What's in store for the BIA in 2014? Have you been thinking about active citizenship? Perhaps this is the organization for you. Come out

You do not need to be a member of the BIA to get involved. But, if you are a BIA member, is it time for you to step forward and submit you utive? The good news is that some of our existing executive members will be putting their names forward for reelection and equally good news is that there is always room for new members.

You never know what a vibrant election will bring! We do know, without a doubt, that the combination of great experience and new people with new ideas, both on our executive and on our committees, will ensure our continued success.

Starting over

OW! This is so unexpected! Before I accept this, a few words of thanks are in order. First and foremost, I'd like to thank my Maker without whom nothing is possible. My parents, Joe and Marie also deserve praise. Mom, Dad, I couldn't have done this without you.

I'd also like to express thanks to London Publishing for stepping up and taking sole ownership of this fine paper and providing us with a stable platform to make good papers - I'm looking forward to a great working relation-

Martha Perkins and Len Pizzey, wherever you are, thanks for seeing something in the raw writing of a fresh-faced kid who was new to this town. Creighton Feir - much love for building this legendary institution!

The fine folks at the Echo who continue to lay their hearts and souls on the line every single day of the production schedule deserve respect and admiration too. They do this with the grace and professionalism every single day. And, needless to say, none of this is possible without you, the audience.

Every time one of you stops me on the street and offers words of support or provides kind comments on social media, my heart soars.

You like me! You really like me!

Oh, I'd like to thank my kids. Carmen, Ryan, Jenny, it's bedtime now. I'll see you when I get home.

Now, I'd like to talk about a great injustice... What's that music? Oh? My time is up. Anyway, thank you Haliburton foreign press! Thank you! Thank you! Bye!

OK, I'll admit the opening paragraphs of this column were influenced by one too many award shows. But I think that's fitting because, frankly, coming back to this column space is about the best reward I can think of right now.

If memory serves me correctly, I've been writing this column every week, without fail, since 1999. I ended that of my own accord in mid-December with the first set of changes to this newspaper. I started writing again the day the papers announced a new direction.

There's no need to get into further details. But, there is need to say, I'm happy to be back.

It's absolutely fantastic! I couldn't have wished for a better turn of events!

I am disappointed about one thing. You see, I've been writing this column for 15 continuous years for The Echo and was hoping that I'd celebrate 20 soon.

In my vivid imagination, I envisioned that, as soon as I hit the 20-year mark the paper would recognize that milestone in some small way.

I wasn't hoping for a big deal to be made of it - perhaps a special edition with my smiling face on the front cover; maybe a limited edition run of Franklin Mint commemorative coins; fireworks; a small feature on how Murray Fearrey presented me with a key to the town and dubbed me "Haliburton's Darling." Oh! And a ticker tape parade! I would have dearly loved a ticker tape parade!

As I said, I didn't want a big deal to be made of it - othervise, it would have upstaged the 25-year celebrations

Sadly, all this has probably been delayed.

I'm still waiting for a Ontario Community Newspaper Association ruling on this but, the way I see, it I'm back to

That means before I can fake humility at being heralded a hometown treasure, I'll have to write 1,039 more col-

It's a little disappointing to be sure. But, you know, I'm looking forward to every single one.

Colette Thomas wants your feet to be happy feet.

A registered nurse and certified foot care nurse, Thomas is the owner of Active Foot Care, Haliburton Village's newest business.

Active Foot Care is located at 50 York St., Unit 6 in the downtown core of Haliburton and opened Jan. 13.

A Cape Breton native, Thomas began coming up the Haliburton Highlands in her 20s through a connection with a friend.

"I have become very familiar with Haliburton and it's very much like Cape Breton, with its gentle hills and the lakes and the people. Just the serenity of it all," said Thomas

Living for many years in Toronto, Thomas always felt a draw back to the Highlands and decided to relocate here in 2008, after getting a nursing job in Bracebridge.

It was late last summer when Thomas decided to pursue a new business venture, following her passion for foot care.

"Lots of research shows that people everywhere need foot care and this area particularly, because of a shortage of services," she said.

Services offered at Active Foot Care include foot assessments, callus and/or corn reduction, toenail trimming, foot massage and more.

It is health teaching and prevention that Thomas is particularly interested in.

"Having been a nurse for over 30 years I've certainly seen the implications of poor foot care and what that means for some people," she said. "I'm very much about prevention ... I want to get the message out there that foot care is not only for the elderly and the infirm, it's for everyone."

Foot problems can happen to anyone, from athletic teenagers to seniors to those whose careers keep them on their feet all day.

Services Thomas provides are not covered by OHIP, with individual sessions costing $40. She suggests those interested to contact her for more info.

"Before they even come in I ask what their concerns are," she said. "I will do an assessment ... I will develop a treatment plan for them, which involves health teaching and then we do follow-up based upon what they presented in the first place."

Thomas is excited and humbled by the opportunity to work in Haliburton and share her expertise.

"At the end of the day what I really want is the best for the people. I want to be able to provide a service that they're going to be pleased about," she said.

Feedback from the public to date has been both positive and encouraging, said Thomas

She points to six tips for caring for your feet, including keeping them warm, dry, the skin supple, resting them, avoiding time spent in high heels and wearing shoes that are broken in, especially when travelling.

Glebe hosts winter 'Special Olympics'

Darren Lum

Staff reporter

The "Winter Special Olympics" at Glebe Park in Haliburton this past Friday is garnering great praise.

Inspiring smiles and red cheeks, the athletic event organized by the J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School for 48 Practical Academic and Life Skills (PALS) students brought the joy of winter sports and the benefits of exer-

Students came from Langton Public School in Fenelon Falls, Parkview Public School in Lindsay and area schools Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, JDHES, Wilberforce Elementary School and Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden.

Organizer Mike Gervais said the event encourages students to exercise and inspires teachers to facilitate more

He adds Glebe Park is the ideal venue for this event with the hill, ski trails and snowshoe trails.

It was possible because of the Trillium Lakelands District School Board Enhancement Grant. If the grant can be secured next year there is a possibility for a second year, he said.

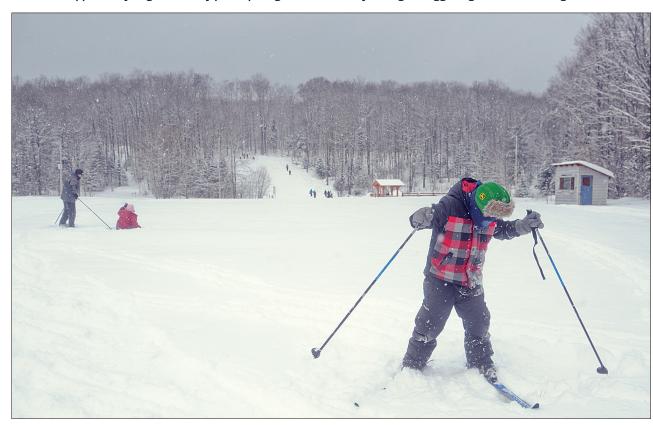

Fourteen JDHES Grade 8 students assisted teaching and leading. Gervais thanked the Haliburton Highlands Nordic Trail and Ski Association, Sharpley Source for Sports, Algonquin Outfitters and Haliburton Highlands Museum curator Kate Butler for their support.

Maybelle in Los Angeleez

Maybelle's

Well, wouldn'tcha know that after waxing poetic about our plans for the inaugural Lake WhaddyathinkImean

New Year's Eve bowl-inthe-dark party with the hot rock group, Gastritis, ol' Maybelle couldn't be there after all. Oh, not that I'm complaining. You see, my dear friend, Libby McGivnish Shmeebaumnerberger surprised me with an airline ticket and invitation to spend New Year's Eve in sunny

No, I did NOT jump ship! I mean, would YOU have passed up an invitation to stop your bones from rattling like maracas and your nose from turning blue from our ca-RA-zy sub-zero weather? Besides ... I look LOUSY in blue.

At first I wasn't going to go, but Vilma Yucch, Officer Stanley Penelope McBottom, Twindle Mumbly, Sybil Beaucannon Hughes, and even Beanpole Starkman told me: "Maybelle, you're outta here." Why even Bogart, my bear, turned on his thought/voice synthesizer cap to tell me: "Mama Maybelle ... just do it!" (He's a big Nike fan, don'tcha know).

So, there I was, bundled in three layers of woolies, slush boots, mitts, a lamb's wool hat and down-filled coat, dragging myself onto Air Canada flight 793 ... and five hours later standing in the LA airport looking like an immigrant from outer Slob-o-via. That's when Libby and Mel raced over yelling: "Mayyyy! Mayyyy!" in blue jeans, tennis shorts, short sleeved T-shirts, and sockless loafers, don'tcha know.

Why, my bones melted just at the sight of their sunny smiles ... and oh how the lush green foliage we drove past, and the palm trees still covered head to trunk in twinkling red and green Christmas lights amused this ol' gal as our lips flapped all the way to their 90210 address 30 minutes away.

All the time Mel was driving (his brand new black Audi sedan) I was peeling my woolies off like fleas were having a cousins club meeting in my nickers, don'tcha know. Eighty degrees, a cloudless sky ... and three more weeks of it to go!

Now, for those of you who don't know this, I am a BIG lover of movies. All kinds. Comedies. Musicals. Dramas. And with no movie house in Lake W and the Oscars coming up I was heart-set on seeing as many of the top 2013 films while I was there. Mel, being a producer and all, made it that much easier. You see all those 6,000 or so members of the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts & Sciences who get to vote for Oscar nominated films and performances are given DVDs of every one of them. So that's how we spent part of our time together. And here's a tidbit Mel told me about voting.

Only actors get to nominate actors. Only cinematographers can nominate cinematographers. And so it goes. But, every member of the academy gets to vote for all of those nominated in the different categories. Best Picture is the exception. All members are allowed to submit their top five favourites. And I can tell you right now which is mine.

The movie's called: Her. It's set in the not-too-distant future in L.A., when a brand new operating system is launched that has its own consciousness, is extremely intuitive, sensitive, has a great sense of humour, and evolves independently beyond its initial programming. I won't tell you anything more except that it's a love story.

Alrighty then. What else did we do? We walked, walked, walked, walked ... and then we walked some more. Every morning, bright and early, down the hills behind the Beverly Hills Hotel ... oh, that's when we saw Jay Leno driving down Benedict Canyon in an old vintage convertible smiling a big morning smile, his thick white hair catching the sun...but, oh no, Leno ... he was talking on his CELLPHONE!!!

South of Sunset Boulevard the land got much flatter, and most of the houses were as big as motels. And gorgeous. But it was the trees that I loved. Tall. old with stories to tell if you listened real close. And it seemed just about every other house we passed had a movie star living in it at one time or other. Libby and Mel would say: "That's where Lucille Ball lived." Or... "Diane Keaton lives there behind all that foliage and private gate."

Lots of times we drove to an area and then walked ... like we did two days before I left Los Angeleez, on the Venice beach boardwalk. What a hoot that was. Tons of people on bikes ... in flip flops. Crowds watching youngins showing off their skate boarding skills with loop-da-loops and some ouches. Drumming circles with a whole whack of musicians. Henna tattoo artists. Cotton candy three feet tall in bright blue and pink. Why the young girl selling it wasn't much taller, don'tcha know.

And of course they had a couple of those legal "Green Doctor Stores" where folks were getting prescriptions filled for marijuana for everything from headaches to hang nails.

Then on New Year's Eve, we joined 25,000 Angelenos who took part in the first public NYE party given by the city in downtown L.A. across the street from the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion and Mark Taper Forum, two beautiful live theatres, in Grand Park. That's right. Julia Diamond, programming director at Grand Park told the papers, "We wanted to set ourselves apart from what they do in New York. There's something to be said for tradition, but that ball drop is 106 years old. It's very analog, very 20th century."

So, Los Angeles, being a creative capital and all, got organized tapping into local talent and using technology to give the celebration a big "wow" factor. There were performances, art installations, and large scale animated projections. Libby, Mel and I were totally gaga watching 3-D animated projections covering 22 floors of City Hall. No longer will you hear ol' Maybelle say: "Digital Shmidgital!" It was AWESOME!!!

And THAT my dear friends, is how this ol' gal felt young and fresh and inspired ringing in 2014 in a way that set my inner compass past "Go" to ... "Wonder."

Maybelle's Fireside Stories is written by Jerelyn Craden. Read Maybelle's Cure for What Ails You, an e-book available at amazon.ca.

Hawks soar to first place with win

Darren Lum

Staff reporter

It's never over until it's over.

This was the presiding sentiment for the Red Hawks boys' hockey team after they hung on for a 4-3 win against the Holy Cross Hurricanes on Wednesday, Jan. 15 at the A.J. LaRue Arena in Haliburton.

That's what I kept telling them," Red Hawks coach Ron Yake said.

The crowd of Red Hawks boys' hockey supporters were barely settled when the home team exploded for two goals (Nate Feir, who also scored the third goal and assisted on the game-winner, and Jayden Wood).

During this time with overwhelming puck dominance, the Hawks looked poised to cruise to the end of the game. However, the Hurricanes didn't give up despite going down by three at the end of the first and facing a four-goal deficit in the third thanks to an insurance marker and eventual game-winner by Red Hawks winger Jake Bursey.

When the Hurricanes scored two unanswered goals in the latter half of the second, the Hawks lead wasn't as secure as the opening period.

Even before the game started Coach Ron Yake told his team about the last time when they lost the second game of a back-to-back.

"I reminded them it's hard to play every time when you're playing back-to-back and keep your focus and thoughts positive," he said. "So we came out flying and got a couple of real quick goals. I think they thought they were in for a little scrimmage ... I give credit to the other team. They picked up, battled back and showed some class."

The Hawks' quick start was attributed in large part to a pair of weak goals surrendered by Dillon Reece.

'Their goalie had a tough start," he said. "We scored a couple that were maybe easy goals. Anyway it was back and forth. I thought it was going to be a pretty game because of it. They got a goal or two and all of a sudden [they're] into a new hockey game."

Yake knew going in Holy Cross was a solid

The Hurricanes won the B division at the St. Peter's Classic just a week before.

This kind of game emphasized the coach's pre-season expectation that every game in this league will be hard fought.

Yake was proud of his team for how it responded in the third by returning to better positional play and discipline.

"That's important for these guys to realize because in the [St. Peter's Classic] tournament we played some very good hockey teams and we had to play positionally very well, in the neutral zone especially and on the forecheck. We started to do that in the third period and that got us back to our game," he said.

His team, he adds, eliminated most of the odd-man rushes that the Hurricanes got in the second period.

Although the Hawks committed more penalties than the Hurricanes, the special teams really stepped up.

With eight minor penalties, the Hawks didn't surrender a goal.

The coach describes the game as "rugged" and still felt his team was disciplined.

Yake said even with a success rate of 1:4 with the powerplay is far and away acceptable.

"We're starting to see that so that's a positive," he said.

The last barrage by the Hurricanes, helped in part by pulling their goalie with a little more than a minute in regulation, was turned away despite a continuous cycle of offensive

Hawks goalie Brayden Frost made two successive stops in-close with seconds left in the game before a mess of bodies and melee ensued, leaving one Hurricanes player tossed for the remainder of the game.

'[Frost's] been playing really well. He's staying focused around his net. He's looking after his angles as the year goes on," Yake said. "He had a very good [St. Peter's Classic] tournament. Both goalies [including Jordan Hamilton] had a very good tournament. And, he played well today. He didn't let anything in the third period. Winning by a goal that's key."

Feir led all scorers with three points (two goals and an assist).

The day before the Hurricanes game the Hawks beat Lindsay Collegiate Vocational Institute Spartans 4-1 while in Lindsay.

Heading into the exam break, the Hawks are first in the Kawartha High School Hockey League and lead by one point over second place St. Peter's Secondary School.

The first game back will be the rubber match against the Hurricanes on Feb. 4 in Peterborough.

The Hawks will host its first home game after the break on Wednesday, Feb. 5 against the Crestwood Mustangs at 3:50 p.m.

Red Hawks defenceman Chris Hall looks to avoid his check against the Holy Cross Hurricanes on Wednesday, Jan. 15 at the A.J. LaRue Arena in Haliburton. The Red Hawks held off a last push by the Hurricanes to hang on for the 4-3 win. With the win, the Hawks are first in the Kawartha High School Hockey League entering the exam break.

Jr Hawks lose to Bulldogs

Darren Lum

Staff reporter

The Red Hawks junior basketball coach is being optimistic on the season after a lopsided home loss to the Brock High School Bulldogs.

Hawks coach Dave Waito remains positive and believes the team is still improving.

On Tuesday, Jan. 14, the juniors fell behind early and couldn't mount enough of a comeback to find its first win of the season, losing 46-27.

"Things are coming. We came out a little flat and a little sloppy in the first half. That's where we lost it. Right at the beginning," he said. "We are turning the corner. We've got a lot of guys who are new to the game and things are coming."

Among the positives from the game included a better second half and the aggression exhibited by his players.

"We came out of the second half and played much better defence in the third quarter. I think the hole was just too deep for us to dig out of," he said.

He said his guard Caleb Schmidt went to the charity stripe eight times, demonstrating great aggression by driving to the basket for inside points rather than shots on the perimeter. It's something the coach has been emphasizing.

With the cancelled season last year the team isn't doing too badly considering the "steep learning curve."

Waito cited the team's overall improved play against Lakefield earlier in the week and the tough 41-39 loss to second place Lindsay Collegiate Vocational Institute the day before.

"I think we're turning [the corner]. We've got a few things to work on," he said.

McKay Coneybeare led the team with eight points.

The team has two remaining games left following the exam break.

Sr Hawks basketball team loses stunner

Darren Lum Staff reporter

Everyone was left speechless after the heartbreaking 34-33 loss suffered by the senior Red Hawks basketball team at the hands of the visiting Brock Bulldogs.

Hawks coach Sam Little and Paul Longo were proud of their team regardless of the outcome.

"We have to give Brock credit for hitting shots when they needed them," Longo said. "Other than a couple of turnovers, we still played good defence in the last five minutes. Our team has turned a corner - they are playing with more confidence on both ends of the floor and they now believe that they can play and compete with any team in our league."

For most of the game the Red Hawks had led and dominated, helped in part by solid defence and by Brock miscues from turnovers and missed shots. Also, the red and white just couldn't miss whether it was on the drive or the perimeter.

To many who saw the 20-6 halftime score, capped by a 14-point explosion in the second, it was a pleasant surprise.

Red Hawks player Will Stephenson, who finished with 12 points, led all players with 10 first-half points. He was dynamite, exploding for quick drives through the lane.

The 14-point Red Hawks lead appeared insurmountable. The Bulldogs, who were not without frustration, kicking chairs and yelling at their coach, had other ideas.

The comeback started in the fourth when the momentum shifted, as the Red Hawks committed turnovers down

A 12-6 run put the Bulldogs down by five points and into a great position to win.

With a little more than two minutes to go, two successive Brock three-pointers not only narrowed the five-point deficit to two points, but also led to a one-point lead 34-33 for the eventual final score.

With the final few seconds on the clock, the Red Hawks had a chance to win when a shoot foul was called during a drive to the net.

Both shots missed.

Haliburton Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit health promoter Angela Andrews said this type of program is a key strategy to prevent falls for seniors by what it teaches and how it brings attention to an important "Seniors don't want to hear about it. People don't believe it will happen to them. Therefore it gets ignored and swept under the carpet - having a person (by example who has a story to share about a situation) and how exercise and balance has helped them improve is what people need to hear," she said in an email.

Andrews said other than the VON SMART exercise program, there really isn't anything else like this offered

The classes are in Minden from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in Haliburton, on Tuesdays. Classes are also on Thursday in Haliburton from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. and in Minden from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. For more information call 705-457-2941.

This type of program "significantly reduces fallsrelated injuries in seniors by between six per cent and 33 per cent," she said. "We have heard from participants first-hand at how much they gain from the exercises and the confidence it brings. Now is the time to keep active - during the cold winter months. Maintain muscle strength and balance and you will be more likely to keep your balance if the winter ice trips you up."

Larry Hewitt's involvement with the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association has led him to assist the local fish hatchery. He delivered the 24-foot glass tank to the facility to accommodate the needs of the hatchery.

Sympathy is extended to the family and many friends of Bernice Trebell of the Barry Line. A celebration of life was held at her home on Jan. 18 in the afternoon.

Many of us knew Bernice as the faithful person delivering mail for 20 years on the local roads.

Welcome to Burns Night on Jan. 25, the actual birthday of Burns, two and a half centuries ago.

The Haliburton Highlands Pipes and Drums, the address to the haggis, the Scottish dancers will all be part of the entertainment in memory of this universally acclaimed Stormy weather on Jan. 6 and 7 caused the cancellation of school buses on those days, and cancellation of the Tuesday euchre that week as well. In town, two choir practices of Melissa Stephens were also cancelled, an indication of how serious was the weather. I think that's a first!

Two Guilford residents have been in hospital for some time, Colleen Davison and Betty Smith. Visitors help to pass the time for those patients.

Euchre scores for Jan. 14, high - Tina Hadley and Bert Craig. Low - Peter Laplante and Kay Morrison. Most lone hands - Gerald Hadley and Ann McIvor.

Best wishes to Nelda Cully on her retirement from her work as receptionist at the medical clinic.

Many friends and relatives attended the afternoon party in her honour at the Community Centre which had been the school where Nelda had been a pupil and where I had taught her in the junior room.

An abundance of delicious refreshments were served and pictures shown of Nelda from youngest years till recently. Congratulations and happy retirement.

Devolin hosts skilled trades info session at Haliburton School of the Arts

MP approached by area resident with ideas to bridge gap of workers and employers

It is often reported that skilled trades jobs are going unfulfilled because qualified candidates cannot be found.

At the same time, many Canadians would love to get those good jobs, but can't because they don't have the necessary certificates or qualification.

Local Member of Parliament Barry Devolin is hosting an information session about the skilled trades at Fleming College's Haliburton campus this Thursday.

The MP was recently approached by a skilled tradesperson in Haliburton who had several ideas to help bridge the gap between Canadian workers looking for work, with available good jobs in the skilled trades.

As a result, Devolin has invited several people with experience in the skilled trades jobs market to come to Haliburton to share their ideas about linking people together.

Anyone interested in jobs in the skilled trades is invited to the Haliburton School of the Arts on Jan. 23 at 7 p.m.

The program will begin with several short presentations, to be followed by a question and answer period.

Admission is free and everyone is welcome. RSVPs are not required.

The college campus is located at 297 College Drive in Haliburton.
